MEETING HOUSE HILL CEMETERY

The Hill Above Centreville: The origins of the Meeting House Hill Cemetery

On the sixth day of July in the year 1761 colonial New Hampshire granted an extension of the charter for the settlement of the town of Brattleborough. The proprietors then went about having the town surveyed into lots and a plan was made. Five acres of the tract of land was reserved on the plan for a common and a burying place. This tract included a part of what is now known as Meeting House Hill Cemetery. It is located on the top of a hill above what was once called Centreville in the western part of Brattleboro.

In 1762, the settlement of the town of Brattleborough became the first permanent settlement away from Fort Dummer. Until this time, burials from Fort Dummer were made in the old cemetery in North Hinsdale and on the meadow by Fort Dummer. Now with a new settlement, a new cemetery was planned in which Elizabeth Wells, age 15 months and 19 days became the first burial in a little grave in the great forest. She was the daughter of Col. Samuel Wells and his wife Hannah. In 1768, a meeting house was built on the common on the five acre tract of land. The "burying yard" is mentioned in many of the early surveys and documents as can be seen in the following:

> "A road was laid June 23, 1774, from the meeting house to Ebenezer Haws's. 'Beginning at the burying yard in the centre line, from thence running with the centre line on the south side of the said line the north side of the meeting house to William Cune's land,' etc."

The meeting house, the common and the cemetery became the focus of the town of Brattleborough around which people built their homes and roads. As the little town grew, people built and moved farther away from this area and today the center of Brattleboro no longer stands on that hill. All that is left of the settlement is Meeting House Hill Cemetery and a marker that tells where the meeting house once stood.

The cemetery itself has taken over the land that was once the common and land on which the meeting house once stood. The cemetery has grown through the years and although there are still many early stones, new ones can be seen between them and all around them, this cemetery still is one of the most frequently used places for burials. As one walks over the hill, names of the early settlers are in abundance among the stones. You see names such as Wells, Arms, Church, Sargent, Cook, Prouty, Field, Whipple, McCune and many more of the first settlers. The cemetery easily blends the old with the new and will stand for many years as one of the earliest and yet still used cemeteries in Brattleboro.

In using this book you will note that each section is coded with numbers and letters. The first letters correspond to the sections on the map, the second part of this code (in the Old Section, letters are rows and numbers are the order read) and in the following sections the numbers follow the way they were read. To actually find a stone in the cemetery, you will have to go to the section and then do a search. This is a very large cemetery thus narrowing stones down to sections is a great help. Italics used in names and with the other stone information denote that this information was not actually on the stone but was found elsewhere.

SECTION G

This section has been variously called the "Urn" section and the "Cremation"section. Most of the lots are small and just large enough for the burial of an urn. There do however appear to be some larger lots here as well. Numbers are not available for all listed here and these are indicated with &&. Note also that current laws do not require registration of these burials, so in many cases there is no public record of them in the town records.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION ABOUT MEETING HOUSE HILL CEMETERY

BRATTLEBORO, Windham County, Vermont. Early History with Biographical Sketches of some of its Citizens. Written by Henry Burnham & edited by Abby Maria Hemenway (Brattleboro VT: D. Leonard, 1880), p. 60.

"By ascending a long hill, nearly north from Centerville, and about a mile distant from that place, we find the ancient burial place of the town. It is but a few rods north of the home of Micah Townshend, which, in the year 1800, he sold to Hon. Royall Tyler. The place is now (1878) owned and occupied by Gilbert Smith, Esq.

For an interesting description of the same see letter of Hon. R. Tyler, in Tyler papers.

In this cemetery is the grave of our first representative Col. Samuel Wells and also of the first minister settled in this town, Rev. Abner Reeve. Maj. John Arms, one of the early settlers, and grandfather of the late Dr. Willard Arms, was buried here six years before the beginning of the war of the Revolution. Three generations of this early family, and our early physician, Dr. Lemuel Dickerman, lie buried here."

WEST BRATTLEBORO: Beautifying The Cemetery — Vermont Phoenix, 1899

Notable Improvements which are being made by Ezra Fisher on Meeting House Hill - Location of the first Meeting House has been marked by a granite block.

For several years it has been the desire of Ezra Fisher to Improve and beautify the cemetery on Meeting House Hill. In fact, he has spent considerable time and Money in so doing. Since the death of his son, Leslie Fisher, whose body was buried in this beautiful spot, his interests in this project has been quickened.

Last fall he bought a strip of land on the south side of the old cemetery, comprising about one and one-fourth acres, of Will Thurber, which has been divided into 156 lots, most of which are 10 by 20 feet in size. The wall on the south side of the old part has been moved to the rear of the new part, forming a back wall. A substantial iron fence, inclosing the grounds, has been begun and will be completed in the spring. Mr. Fisher has caused a receiving vault to be built of brick and stone. He has also placed a fine granite monument on the family lot.

It was through Mr. Fisher that the Meeting House Hill Cemetery association was incorporated. There has been renewed effort on the part of several who have relatives buried there, in the past few years, to keep the ground in better shape than formerly.

The cemetery is on a height of land back of the village and a more beautiful spot would be hard to find. It is particularly interesting from the fact that on the land recently bought by Mr. Fisher was built the first meeting house in town. The actual location of the meeting house has been determined by measurements and surveys of old records looked up by Hon. H. W. Wheeler. It was found in a lot near the centre of the new part.

The location has a suitable granite marker, placed there by Mr. Fisher, on which is the following inscription: "The first meeting house in Brattleboro was built here A. D. 1768." In digging for the foundation of this marker, ample proof was found that right there was the fire place in the old meeting house, showing that the survey was correct. In several places about the hill can be found indications that buildings stood there long ago.

The first burial in this cemetery occurred in 1765, the body being that of Elizabeth Wells. The old road running over this hill and through the valley to Guilford can be traced in the summer time. There are many slate headstones in the cemetery, some of which are so old and have become so affected by the action of the weather that the inscriptions upon them are almost indiscernible.
